REVAN

Season 1 - The Butcherer

Revan – Episode 02 – The Padawan

We open to the star forge with Out of the Black by royal blood playing from the lyric portion - 0:25 as we move from the bottom layer of barely living slaves (first part), up to a layer of robotic manufacturing (second part), up to the sith overseers watching over everything (every part of me...), up to the garrison (intermission), Sith are eating and drinking, it continues to move upwards to the apprentices training, and at the top we see Revan standing in front of Ekralon's cage (Chorus), the song cuts out the chorus ends. There's a silence as Revan looks out of a caged window at a beam of plasma from the top of star forge moves through a large open cavity. The hum of the forge can be heard.

Ekralon says:

"So... you're just going to stand there?"

Revan laughs, turns around and says:

"You're interesting."

Ekralon tries to cover herself with the blanket in her cell. He says as he sits down outside the cell:

"A Chiss Padawan? What's your tragic story?"

Ekralon says:

"I don't have one."

Revan says:

“The Chiss are isolationist, they don’t explore, you are a force sensitive Chiss that somehow left her own people to join the Jedi order as a padawan, that doesn’t scream happy…”

Ekralon says:

“No, it actually does, it was the best thing to happen to me.”

Revan says:

“So, you do have a tragic story. Interesting…”

He indicates out to the star forge and says:

“You’re right. This is the best thing that happened to you.”

Ekralon says:

“You brought me here; I would’ve happily died for the order.”

Revan stands and says:

“Exactly, a mindless creature that’ll die for them.”

Ekralon says:

“They’re not monsters, unlike you.”

Revan puts takes his mask off and says:

“Am I not human?” as he looks directly at her.

Ekralon adjusts, and more confidently says:

“Humans are the greatest monsters.”

Revan smiles, leans in and says:

“Exactly, and the worst kind? Liars and cowards. The jedi are both.”

Ekralon pauses and says:

“You’ve never lied?”

Revan says:

“When have I lied to you?”

Ekralon stops and Revan stands up, placing the mask on the windowsill and says:

“See that’s the great thing about being evil, no one expects good, so you never have to lie, what could telling the truth really do to me now?”

Ekralon says:

“So, you’re saying you’re better than the Jedi because you don’t lie, but are so evil you don’t have to? It speaks for itself?”

Revan says:

“Exactly. They lied to you, didn’t they?”

Ekralon says:

“How so?”

Revan says:

“The mining colony, they never told you it was a slave planet just…”

He continues mockingly as he turns around:

“Critical to mission security, right? They sent a good woman and a child to die for nothing but ego.”

Ekralon looks shocked and says:

“You killed her!”

Revan says:

“She was my friend at one time. They gave the order, and she followed it.”

Ekralon says:

“Like you’re any better.”

Revan says:

“Oh no I’m not, but then again, I don’t lie about how bad I am, you on the other hand don’t know the definition of the word.”

There’s a pause. Revan pulls out a sith holocron and says:

“If you want the truth about the Jedi...”

He throws it on the floor and says:

“See for yourself.”

Ekralon says:

“I can’t open a sith holocron.”

Revan goes cold and looks blankly at her and says:

“Yes, you can.”

Ekralon says:

“I won’t fall to the dark side...”

Revan smiles and says:

“Fall… as if it’s below you?”

Ekralon says:

“isn’t it?”

Revan says:

“More adjacent than below.”

She says:

“Then I won’t rotate to the dark side.”

Revan laughs and says:

“Yes, you will, because you want to know.”

Ekralon sits back down and stairs at the screaming pyramid on the floor. Revan puts his mask back on and says:

“Don’t believe their lies. That was my mistake.”

He goes to leave and Ekralon says:

“Wait!”

Revan stops and then starts laughing and says:

“What you think you deserve my time padawan? Open it or don’t you’ll be dead by sunup if not.”

He turns to exit the prison. The door closes and he walks down a hallway silently as metal can be heard screeching in the background; Malak catches him and walks with him as he says:

“Why aren’t we killing her? We kill Jedi.”

Revan says:

“She’s Chiss.”

Malak says:

“So what? She’s a certain race so she gets a pass?”

Revan says:

“Well yes, it’s rare, so rare I’d venture to guess she’s the only one in the galaxy that’s a padawan.”

Malak says:

“She’s still a Jedi… I’ll do it.”

As he turns around. Revan spins around and force chokes him, throwing him against a wall violently. Malak tries to fight back, and Revan says:

“You will not touch her Malak. Don’t forget your place.”

He walks up to him and says loud but not angrily:

“Do you understand?!”

Malak struggles to say:

“yes...” as he’s choking.

Revan chokes him hard for one last second as if he’s about to kill him and drops him, Malak gasps for air coughing and holding his throat, Revan walks away saying:

“Don’t forget again.”

Malak watches him leave for a second and coughs one last time.

We smash cut with Malak punching the floor to the Jedi council. Jedi 1 says:

“Revan’s team destroyed Khaross... one more planet lost to the Sith Empire.”

Jedi 3 says:

“What about the Jedi? Any survivors?”

Jedi 2 says:

“Well, a padawan went missing so we’re hoping for the best, but her master is dead.”

Jedi 2 punches the control panel and calms back down:

“So, we lost a great Jedi duelist and master, and now a padawan that Revan has what? Kidnapped?”

Jedi 3 says:

“We can’t know for sure; she could just be dead.”

Jedi 1 says quietly:

“A lot of the bodies were… unidentifiable.”

A female Jedi master walks in and says:

“What’s happening?”

Jedi 2 says trying to cover his frustration and anger, with a fake smile:

“Ah Master Bastila, welcome.”

Jedi 3 says:

“We’re discussing Revan’s most recent attack, a padawan is missing, 14 Jedi knights and 1 Master are dead.”

Bastila says:

“What moron decided sending 1 master with a padawan to fight Revan was a good idea?”

The room goes silent and Bastila raises an eyebrow and says:

“I see, so now you feel guilty, after a child is dead.”

Jedi 1 says:

“There’s no proof of that yet.”

Bastila glares at him and says:

“So what? She’s in the star forge then? Locked up with the slavers and other Jedi he’s taken as trophies? That’s better than death, right?”

Jedi 2 says:

“Instead of judging our decisions can we discuss our next move? Revan can’t be stopped. The only way he could be is if he's betrayed by someone.”

Bastila laughs and says:

“Good luck with that.”

As she turns around and leaves. She walks up to her Padawan waiting outside the council room and says:

“Come on. I’ve got a lesson to teach you.”

We smash cut to Revan in his ship. He’s playing with his lightsaber, flipping the hilt around in his hands. The ship arrives at a swamp planet; he lands and walks out of the ship. The locals move back in fear as he walks through the streets of the planet. They lock their doors as he enters a large coliseum. There’s a fight in the coliseum; Revan looks around and sees the King and his wife sitting up in a booth deciding the fights. Revan walks around seeing 2 men fighting with short, stubbed light sabers as we get a small montage of the fight. He walks up to the king and says:

“Your tribute is late.”

The king turns around and looks stunned as he jumps and says:

“Revan! My good friend! Of course, I’ll get it right away, please enjoy the entertainment!”

Revan looks out at the two fighting; one misses the other and the other cuts his stomach then stabs him in the heart from behind.

Revan says:

“Why would I enjoy watching 2 bugs fight?”

The king’s face falls flat. A man comes back and whispers to the king. The king looks back and says:

“It’ll be waiting at your ship tonight, are you sure you can’t stay for a drink?”

Revan sits down next to him and says:

“I can wait.”

The king pauses and says:

“Most of these people have never seen a Sith lord before…”

Revan pauses and then says:

“I’m sure.”

The king says:

“I’ll double the tribute for a good show…”

Revan says:

“You want me to fight in your coliseum for money?”

The king says:

“Why not? I’m sure you can’t lose.”

Revan glares at him and looks out at the arena. He force jumps into the coliseum. The man whose still alive turns around and jumps towards him, he swings and Revan dodges. Slides under him. The man looks confused and turns around to look at him. Revan stands still unmoving. The man starts to circle him. Revan puts his hand out and force grabs the other’s weapon. The man suddenly runs at Revan and Revan activates the short saber, throws it stabbing the man in the head, he crashes to the ground in front of him as the crowd goes wild. The king says:

“LADIES AND GENTLEMEN! In one corner, the darkest sith lord of the galaxy, the scourge of the Jedi Order, and ladies? Yes, he’s single. It’s Darth Revan!”

The crowd cheers, we see a group of women blow kisses at him. We cut Reven and he sighs and says:

“Great...”

The king then says:

“And in the other corner, the most vicious beast in this land, the tiger with 2000 teeth, the most dangerous predator in the GALAXY!”

Boilermaker by Royal Blood comes in as a large lionlike creature with mechanical teeth that change position and are rotating in its mouth roars as it enters the Arena through a large door. The king shouts:

“FIGHT!”

The lion jumps forward and runs toward Revan, Revan force jumps and flips over it, he lands looking directly at it. Revan cocks his head as the lion watches him. The lion cocks its head in response, then sprints towards him again and Revan walks back against a wall and waits. The lion gets closer, Revan lowers, and puts his hands against the wall. The lion gets close, and Revan force jumps across the floor and under it, rotates up and slices it in half with his lightsaber and then force jumps back into a standing position as the music cuts. The animal falls over behind him as he disengages his lightsaber.

The silent crowd enters an ecstatic roar as we transition to the Jedi council members walking down a hallway, Bastila catches up with them and says:

“Going to the vote I see?”

One of the members says:

"Bastila we appreciate your time and expertise, but you are not a member of the council."

Bastila raises an eyebrow and says:

"So, I'm not good enough to join the council to vote on the new propositions and declarations of war brought forward by the republic? But I am good enough to teach?"

They stop and Jedi council member 1 says:

"Bastila your emotions are insignificant to the hierarchy in which we live."

Bastila smiles and says:

"The function of the Jedi council is to educate new recruits, is it not?"

A member chuckles and says:

"The function of the order is to bring order to the galaxy."

Bastila says:

"Well seeing as you've already failed, and there are new padawan shouldn't they both understand the religious edicts of the council and the political landscape in which it operates?"

The members stop and one says:

"That would be advantageous."

Bastila says:

"Great! I'll bring my padawan and she can watch the masters at work."

She walks off to get her padawan and the members of the council watch. One says:

"Bastila is going to becoming a problem for us one day."

Another says:

"She's likes to play with fire too often."

As he turns and the others follow.

We cut back to the coliseum there are bodies all over the ground now, The King says:

"For our final fight of the day we have something unique, something terrifying! The most violent Sith lord, Darth Revan, versus the most deranged, one so insane he can't speak, meet, for the first time in over 200 years... Darth Kellex!"

A Sith marauder comes out of a cage, and Revan looks at him and says:

"What the fu-?!"

We cut to the marauder screaming and hitting his own head as he walks in. Revan watches as he looks around swatting at nothing, then he locks eyes with Revan and activates his dual dual-bladed light sabers and jumps at him screaming. Revan force jumps back and activates his lightsaber. The scream of his blade makes the marauder violently react; he collapses, holding his head crying, his eyes slowly go black and his face drains of emotion, his neck snaps at Revan as he locks onto him. Revan force jumps towards him and starts to duel him. It's a violent duel, and the marauder smashes Revan sideways and he crashes against the ground, 50 meters away, the crowd goes silent. The king smiles. He stands back up slowly and says:

"This is new."

He forces grabs his lightsaber and activates a small button on it. It starts repeatedly flashing on and off, he pulls out a purple lightsaber of the same style and activates its blade repeater and says:

"Let's see how good you really are."

He forces jumps in and his lightsabers activating on and off repeatedly and rapidly start to overwhelm the marauder visually, the marauder tries to swing at him, Revan jumps around his swings, slashing his legs, arms, and chest. Eventually the marauder is on his knees and Revan stands back and spins the blades in the air before deactivating them. The crowd is silent as the marauder starts weaping in the middle of the coliseum, he repeats a word:

"Nihilis, Nihilis, Nihilis"

As he punches his head. Revan says:

"What are you trying to say?"

The marauder continues then starts weeping in a horrifying cry, Revan kneels still listening to him, we see audience members shocked, the Marauder looks at Revan as his eyes bleed and says:

“Nihilus.”

Revan watches in silence and places his hand on the marauders head as he says:

“What do you see?”

The screen melts into a black void, suddenly flashes of different scenes appear, a man wearing a bone mask whispering sith runes to himself, a man being force life drained by said figure in a red cloak. A planet being ripped apart by an explosion, and the people running as they scream. It cuts back to Reven, he’s hyperventilating and starts to calm down. As he catches his breath, the camera switches to his back and slowly approaches him, as the whispering builds. All sound cuts but the whispering. Revan turns and is now face to face with Nihilus, he’s terrified. A broken voice echoes through the environment as his body continues whispering:

“The children…”

Revan’s face drops as the whispering stops but his neck snaps staring at Revan, the voice echoes again:

“How they screamed…”

The void is filled with screaming and Nihilus rapidly puts his arm out throwing Revan back into his real body where he falls back trying to regain his footing, hyperventilating as the marauder cries. The crowd is silent.

Revan looks at the marauder and finishes him off with red force lightning blasting him to ash and executing him. We see the kings face shocked at the power and ability he’s just seen, the entire crowd has recoiled and gone silent. Revan pauses and looks around; he then puts his arms out and shouts:

“What?! You need more?!”

The crowd starts to roar. Revan looks at the king, staring him down and he turns towards the gate and blasts it open with the force and leaves as the crowd erupts.

We cut back to Bastila as she trains her padawan, the padawan is fighting a robot training companion, she has a training helmet on. Bastila says:

“Watch your foot work, footwork is 90% of the battle.”

The padawan defends some hits then hits over and says:

“Why do I have to wear this thing?”

Tearing off the helmet. She says:

“It’s ridiculous, if I’m going to be in combat, I’ll have eyes.”

Bastila says:

“What if you become blind? Or it’s completely dark?”

The padawan says:

“Only 0.1% of the Jedi order is blind and we have prosthetic eyes, and if it’s dark I have a LIGHTsaber, light is literally in the name!”

Bastila says:

“I get that you’re frustrated but it’s important that we heighten and train your force sensitivity, if not you might miss something and die.”

The padawan thinks for a second and puts on the helmet muttering:

“Stupid bloody helmet, I can’t see shit, stupid visor-“

A master walks up to Bastila as the padawan is fighting the droid in the background and says:

“Kids... they can be a handful.”

Bastila says:

“She’s not wrong though.”

The master says:

“And that can be the problem. They challenge everything and when they’re right we love them for making valid points but hate them for pointing out something we could’ve.”

Bastila smiles and says:

“I really didn’t mind the helmet.”

The master says:

“Oh, I hated the thing, but in my day, it was a lot larger and heavier. Made your neck ache after 5 minutes.”

Bastila laughs and says:

“5 minutes?” In disbelief.

The master says:

“Yep 5. Every time.”

The padawan force throws the robot and throws her lightsaber cutting it in half midair and force grabbing it back into her hands. Both adults look a little shocked and she takes off the helmet and says:

“So… did I get a high score or something?”

Bastila laughs and says:

“Not sure you’d be able to beat Revan’s honey…”

Indicating over to the score board on the wall with Revan as a child on top. She continues:

“Come on we’ll get some food and relax for the rest of the day.”

We cut back to Ekhralon in her cell. She’s staring at the dark glowing and screaming pyramid on the floor. Malak comes into the corridor with a tray of food. He places it on the food entry gate of the cell and says:

“Here. Food.”

Ekhralon watches him as he leaves and jumps up and says:

"Wait!"

Malak turns around a little frustrated and says:

"What?"

Ekhralon says:

"Can you help me?"

Malak says:

"Why would I help... you?"

Ekhralon says:

"I have to open this."

Showing him the sith holocron. Malak laughs and says:

"Ooooo the goody two shoes Jedi wants to open a sith holocron. Well, I can't help you."

He starts to walk away, she says:

"Please, I don't know how to access the dark side. I've never been taught!"

Malak says:

"Well sucks to be you!"

He slams the door in the corridor and Ekhralon throws in on the ground and shouts:

"WHY WON'T ANYONE HELP ME!"

The holocron starts to glow and she notices as she calms down that it stops glowing, tears in her eyes. She gasps and sits cross legged with the holocron in front of her. She closes her eyes, and we see her face as she gets angry and starts to cry. We move into a flashback. We see a young Ekhralon running through the streets of her hometown when 2 men grab her in a bag. They carry her to a ship and throw her in; she breaks her arm and is crying in the bag as the ship takes off. We next scene we see is her taking almost mugshot photographs and is now in a slave auction, she sees a man hit a boy across the face and gets angry, she screams blowing out the windows, and then a younger Arlek can be see watching the building's window's explode, she runs over to the building as people are running out and enters. She sees a crying balled up Ekhralon with her broken arm on stage with a tag around her neck that reads 20,000 credits. She kneels and says:

"It's ok. It's ok."

We fade using Arlek's face to Revan murdering her and we cut to the outside now, Ekhralon is fully in tears, she clenches her fists and the holocron is floating. It unlocks and displays a man. The man begins:

"I'm making this as fast as possible because I fear my time is short."

Ekhralon looks shocked and says:

"A Jedi..."

The man continues:

"The purpose of this holocron is to document the massacre of the Chiss force sensitives, approximately 70,000 died in the bombings last month. The vast majority were neutral as to not bring their people into war."

We see Ekhralon watching in horror. The man continues:

"The Jedi council along with the republic saw fit to wipe out the Chiss force sensitives, not because they had done anything evil, not because they were sith, but because they were a completely separate ideology..."

An explosion goes off behind the man, he reacts and continues shakily:

"I have to go, I reject the abhorrent actions of my people, I fear it will pass and people will forget, and we will never see another Chiss force user again in this galaxy. I pray I'm wrong, but... often the galaxy is dark. If you're seeing this in the future, I'm sorry for the role I played in this tragedy... and I hope the galaxy can heal."

The holocron shuts completely. Ekhralon sits frozen as it falls to the ground and she starts to cry. Malak watches from the door and sighs. He feels bad for her, and he leaves. As he walks down the hallway, Revan passes him, and Malak doesn't say a word. Revan notices this and stops, watching him walk and looks forward and continues walking. He enters an elevator and gets out at the top and enters the prison cell hallway. He hears Ekhralon sobbing as he slowly walks towards the cell. He sees the holocron and her crying and says:

"You opened it."

She cries louder now. We see Revan place his mask down as he sits. He continues:

“So, you understand now…”

She screams:

“FUCK YOU! I HATE YOU!”

Revan sits quietly and then says:

“Pain and hatred are tools. You must learn to use them.”

She stands up and shouts:

“I don’t want to be a Sith! Or a Jedi! The order betrayed my people! You killed the only friend I ever had!”

Revan says:

“Then don’t either.”

She looks confused and says:

“What?!”

Revan pauses and stands; he walks to window looking at the plasma and says:

“Do you know why I joined the Sith?”

She says:

“No...”

He says:

“It wasn’t because I believed in the Sith empire or the religion, it wasn’t because I absolutely hated the Jedi either, it was because the Jedi didn’t act.”

She says:

“That’s not possible, the sith empir-“

He cuts her off:

“The Sith empire helped me defeat the Mandalorians invading the republic and killing millions of people while the Jedi stayed idle, waiting for it to get bad enough to help.”

She says:

“That’s not possible!”

Revan says:

“You need to find a way for yourself... to be free inside of your cage.”

He unlocks the door and opens it, he says:

“You have a choice, you can stay here and learn from me, learn how to control yourself and live or leave.”

She moves slowly past him and starts to run. She slows down and stops and says:

"I won't survive out there on my own."

Revan smiles and says:

"You might."

She says:

"The Chiss won't let me come home, the Jedi will interrogate me and tell I've turned, and the Sith will kill me because they think I'm a Jedi. I have nowhere to go."

Revan says:

"You could hide..."

She says:

"And what kind of life would that be?"

Revan says:

"A long one."

There's a pause... She then turns and says:

“You said you have to be free in the cage?”

Revan nods. She then says:

“So, what’s your cage?”

Revan pauses as Nihilus’ voice echoes “The Children…”, Revan snaps out of it and says:

“How much time do you have?”

She says:

“I guess… the rest of my life.”

There’s another pause and Revan says:

“That’s a story for later, tomorrow, you join me and Malak.”

She says:

“Killing Jedi?”

He says:

“That’s not all we do… but yes.”

She says:

“Wouldn’t the Jedi hate me for it?”

He says:

“You said Arlek was your only friend? I’m guessing the others already do.”

She says:

“But… they’re still my friends.”

Revan says:

“No… they’re not, if you can’t be loved, be feared.”

She says:

“And Malak? He already hates me.”

Revan says:

“He’s a Sith, he hates everyone.”

She pauses and sighs, she then says:

“I just want to be a padawan again.”

There’s a pause as she sits against a wall and curls up, Revan sits next to her and says:

“So do I.”

We get a final shot of Revan and Ekhralon sitting looking straight on as a peaceful piano piece like Spiegel im speigel distorts violently and we smash cut to credits.
