REVAN
Season 1 - The Butcherer

Episode 05 – The Aftermath

We start with Fur Elise and open to Bastila being carried on a stretcher into an ambulance. Visions of Revan flash in her mind, visions of the wife's face. We can see tears falling down her face. The chancellor jumping out of the balcony. The Jedi council members watch as she's being carried away, one says:

"There hasn't been a sith capable of these abilities in a long time."

Another says:

"Revan is a lot more dangerous than I think we all appreciate."

The first says:

"We need to keep this quiet for now."

The second says:

"Quiet?! The Chancellor just became an abstract art installation!"

The first says:

"Because if we don't there will be chaos, and we look weak."

The third turns around and says:

"We look weak…"

Putting his arms out noting the room:

"We don't look weak, we are."

The first says:

"The Jedi have to look strong to keep order in the galaxy."

The third says:

"We need to recall all masters immediately, we need to retrain all of them."

The second says:

"That's literally impossible and even so Bastila was a good duelist, competent in 3, but he obliterated her without a weapon."

The first says:

"Just keep it out of the news for now and scrape him off the road."

We cut to Revan walking slowly through the Star Forge, he walks over an abyss, with levels of slaves below them being forced to work and he enters the main discussion and eating chamber. The Korribani is sitting waiting for him. Revan sits down and says:

"To what do I owe the pleasure of your existence?"

The Korribani says:

“I have a job for you.”

Revan says facetiously:

“What can the Realm of Shadows do for the child of Korriban?”

He says:

“There’s a particular Jedi that killed my father.”

Revan says:

“Oh, a Jedi, who could have guessed?”

He says:

“He’s on the council; I thought your particular… talents could help settle a score.”

Revan pauses and then says:

“Alright where is he now?”

He says:

“He’s off of coruscant, engaged in political negotiations with the Chiss Ascendancy.”

Revan stops and says:

“Well shit.”

He says:

“Yeah… So don’t bring your little friend.”

Ekhralon walks in and says:

“Don’t bring who?”

Revan sighs and says without turning:

“Were you really eavesdropping?”

Ekhralon says:

“No.”

Revan looks at her and says:

“You are talking to the evilest people in the galaxy according to some.”

She pauses and she corrects:

“Fine, yes. Only because I am trying to learn more.”

The Korribani laughs and says:

“She’s dedicated I’ll give her that.”

Revan says:

“Ekhralon you can’t come with us to the Chiss Ascendancy it's not a good idea.”

Ekhralon says:

“Why not? The Chiss were some of the most powerful force wielders in the galaxy, maybe showing them me would change their mind as to who, politically, they should be aligning.”

The Korribani turns to Revan and says:

“She’s got a brain too, where did you find her?”

Revan says:

“A mining planet.”

There’s a pause and Ekhralon says:

“Come on, I’m not even really Sith.”

The Korribani stands up and says:

“Even so, you represent the Sith now.”

Revan says:

“He’s right.”

Ekhralon says:

“So you’re going, as the most wanted Sith in the galaxy to an isolationist culture with a pureblood Korribani, do you not see how that would be an issue?”

Revan pauses for a second and he looks at the Korribani and they both start muttering agreeing. Revan then turns to her and says:

“Alright fine, you can come, just don’t die.”

She says:

“I won’t.”

As she leaves the room. The Korribani says:

“Teenagers...”

Revan laughs and says:

“Yeah...”

We cut back to the Jedi council, all the masters still alive are sitting in a circle sans Bastila. One holographic jedi says:

“Bastila, how is she?”

Jedi 1 says:

"She's alive, that's all that matters for now."

Another says:

"Why would Revan keep her alive?"

Jedi 2 says:

"To send a message perhaps?"

The first says:

"If Bastila has a message for us then we won't hear it until she wakes up."

A holographic jedi says:

"How badly hurt was she?"

The second says:

"Not physically hurt but he force life drained her and apparently according to what we saw on security cameras used a mind control technique to make it appear as if the chancellor killed himself."

The holographic Jedi says:

“So, we have an unknown, powerful Sith, with abilities only seen in the most powerful of the Sith, running around the galaxy with no way of fighting back? Has anything changed?”

The Jedi says:

“We have to have faith in the force; besides that we need to ensure this doesn’t get out, the Chancellor is definitely dead, but we need to spin it.”

Another says:

“Natural causes?”

The first says:

“Plausible… but closed casket because… well he’s a liquid.”

The room goes quiet and another says:

“And the wife?”

Another says:

“The people love hearing spicy stories about senators, if we say he committed suicide, then I say we leak that she was a drug addict, and she overdosed that night leading to his suicide?”

The first says:

“That’s one possibility, dark but plausible for most.”

Another says:

“Or she died of natural causes at the same time? Like they loved each other so much that their bodies just gave out together and they’re forever in the force.”

All of them stop and then agree with that. Jedi 2 says:

“It’s got the religious spin that makes it believable to the masses, and we don’t have to explain any deeper than that.”

We cut to Revan, Ekhralon and Zevarûn (The Korribani) in their ship. Revan turns and says:

“I never got your name.”

Zevarûn says:

“Zevarûn, it’s an ancient Sith family title.”

Revan says:

“Yeah, no I expected it to be ancient Sith… Zevarûn, this Jedi who is he?”

Zevarûn says:

“A master of forms 2, 4, and 7.”

Revan says:

"So hyper aggressive combat, not a lot of defensive strategy?"

Zevarûn says:

"No, he's competent in other forms, it's just those 3 he's best in."

Revan says:

"And force abilities?"

Zevarûn says:

"He is capable of force judgement, but very rarely uses it."

Revan says:

"Interesting, a Jedi with force lightning."

Zevarûn says:

"I want to be the one to kill him."

Revan says:

"Then you shall be."

There’s a pause and Ekhralon says:

“What’s Koribban like?”

Revan says:

“In ruins now, but a lot of old Sith temples.”

Zevarûn says:

“There’s an underground ancient Sith council but they’re in hiding.”

Revan says:

“Vitiate?”

Zevarûn says:

“Yeah, exactly. How did you know?”

Revan says:

“Because that Anzati leader froze when I won, no way he’s the true sith lord operating everything, but I have heard rumors, so educated guess.”

Zevarûn says:

“He’s a pureblood.”

Ekhralon says:

"So, you're related?"

Zevarûn says:

"We are related, my father trained him, after the war with the Jedi 2000 years ago, the Korriban purebloods bred with humans, the only pure bloods left are products of in-breeding."

She sucks her teeth and says:

"oooo not good."

Zevarûn says:

"Tell me about it, I mean imagine being taught your entire life that you need to keep the blood line pure, you know how many pureblood Korribani there are?"

Ekhralon raises an eyebrow. He continues:

"20. 12 women only, and that's only the one's I know about."

Revan says:

"So, you're just extremely horny all the time?"

Zevarûn says:

“Well now you know why I can use black force lightning.”

Ekhralon chuckles and says:

“A lot of pent-up energy huh?”

Zevarûn laughs. Revan says:

“He’s joking anyone can invoke Korriban while using a force ability binding the soul of whoever you kill to Korriban itself, they’re doomed to walk the surface of the planet for an endless Epoch as their minds decay into madness.”

Ekhralon’s jaw drops. Revan then turns to Zevarûn and says:

“I’ve never heard of a celibate Sith though.”

Zevarûn says:

“Oh, I’m not celibate, I decided that long ago, I just can’t have a non-pure-blooded child according to my father… The hypocrite.”

Ekhralon says:

“So, you can still hook up with off-worlders, you just can’t have a child with one?”

Zevarûn says:

“Well, I’m not supposed to, as you put it, ‘hook up with off-worlders’ but I do anyway despite my father’s wishes.”

Revan raises his glass and says:

“To annoying parental rules controlling the way we live.”

They both cheer as we cut to the outside of the ship in hyperspace.

We wipe to Bastila in hospital, she blinks awake with a breathing tube down her throat, she can barely see, and watches blurred nurses walking around dealing with different issues. One comes up to her and we hear a feint:

“Master Bastila, can you hear me?”

The others rush over noticing she’s awake. We get a view from their perspective as we hear clearly:

“Tap your index finger twice if you can hear me.”

She taps her finger twice against the bed. She says:

“Good, just relax, you’ve been in a terrible fight, you’re stable and healing so just relax, you’ll be fine.”

She closes her eyes, and we smash cut to her padawan training outside without her. She’s fighting more droids now, 6 instead of 4. Using forms 7, 4 and 5. A council member walks up to her but keeping his distance and says:

“Seravé!”

She stops fighting and turns, she throws her lightsaber killing the last droid and says:

"Yeah?"

The council member says:

"I didn't know Bastila taught you form 4..."

She says:

"She didn't, I practice in my off time."

He smiles for a second then it drops, he looks and her and says:

"She's awake now, but unable to speak, I think it would be nice for you to visit her."

She forces jumps over the training ring, lands and says:

"Is she alright?"

They start walking and the council member says:

"Bastila has taught you well."

She responds:

“Master Bastila has taught me calm above all else, the fighting I understand, quick, forceful but patience was the big lesson.”

He smiles and says:

“Like most padawan I know.”

They enter a door and she turns right and starts walking as he watches for a second; the council member shouts down the hallway:

“Wrong way!”

We cut back to Revan, Ekhralon and Zevarûn, the ship drops out of hyper space and lands. Revan says:

“I would say we should disguise ourselves, but who are we kidding here? You’re red, you’re blue, and I’m… well, me.”

Zevarûn says:

“I think the jedi are force sensitive enough to detect face paint.”

Ekhralon laughs and says:

“You’d be surprised.”

The ship lands and they get out. The Chiss dock hands run away in fear as Revan exits with the other 2. Revan says:

“I wonder what they’re running away from.”

Zevarûn says:

“We really need to hang out more.”

Chiss warriors surround them and Zevarûn takes off his hood. They immediately become more fearful when they notice them with Ekhralon. The leader says:

“State your business Sith lord.”

Revan stretches and say:

“Oh, you know, vacation. I was hoping to suntan, drink something fruity, enjoy the sand between my feet, I love sand, you know normal vacation activities.”

Zevarûn cuts in and says:

“We’re envoys from the Sith empire, we mean you no harm, we realized that recently the republic has been making efforts to communicate and open trade agreements with the Chiss Ascendancy, we only came here to stake our claim… Or should we not be concerned when the republic discusses business with the great and powerful Chiss empire?”

The commander is taken aback by this and says:

“You have a Chiss warrior among your ranks?”

Revan says:

“More of a pet.”

She strikes him with lightning but gently. Revan laughs. The guard says:

“You are a Sith? A Chiss Sith?”

Ekhralon says:

“Yeah, survived the purge and all.”

The guard says:

“You’ll have to deposit your weapons with us if you want to enter as you are all Sith.”

Revan says:

“Whether we have blades or not is irrelevant, we are weapons, and if we see fit, we can melt your entire planet down and take you with it.”

Zeravûn says:

“Sorry my friend is not aware of your great culture’s rules and regulations, I unfortunately cannot give you my weapon as it’s off great religious and cultural significance, however I can offer an alternative and that is to leave it on the ship… That being said, I must ask in the spirit of friendly cooperation, complete transparency and absolute honesty, did the Jedi do the same?”

The guard stops and Zeravûn says:

“Ah, you wouldn’t want to be seen as picking sides as a neutral culture, would you?”

The guard is still silent. Zeravûn steps forward and says:

“We merely are here to discuss business, as the Sith and Jedi are enemies if the Jedi has not stowed his weapon, then we simply can’t agree to do so as we could be attacked. You understand right?”

The guards put down their weapons and the leader says:

“Alright but you can’t activate them while on our soil, that would be considered an act of war by the Chiss grand families.”

Zeravûn says:

“Of course.”

He puts his arms out and says:

“Now if you’d like you can be our designated military protection, give us a tour of your wonderful and great home world.”

The guards start to walk with Zeravûn and Revan says to Ekhralon:

“Wow, who knew he was so politically gifted.”

Ekhralon giggles and says:

“Pent up energy.”

Revan laughs and says:

"Just like every politician I know."

They laugh as they walk with the guards.

We cut to Bastila lying in her hospital bed without her breathing tube now, Seravé is sitting next to her holding her hand and humming a melody. As she continues the song starts coming in, I will survive by Gloria Gaynor. As the song properly starts, we see Bastila and Seravé fighting in a flash back. Each swing building off the other. A sith appears and Bastila bullet jumps into him and starts to duel as the chorus comes in. We get a duel in the part without any words between the two. As the words come back in Bastila wins decapitating the Sith lord. She turns to see Seravé talking on a sith apprentice and she wins as the next "I will survive comes in." The song fades as we fade back into the emergency room. Fluorescent lighting glowing over the two of them. Bastila wakes up and Seravé dives in and hugs her she reacts in pain, and she pulls back. Bastila laughs and says:

"You always were too fast."

Seravé laughs with tears in her eyes and says:

"You're alive..."

Bastila says:

"I am."

Seravé says:

“But how?”

Bastila says:

“He showed me mercy… for some reason.”

Seravé says:

“Maybe he has a heart?”

Bastila chuckles in pain and says:

“If that monster has a heart, it’s as black as obsidian.”

We cut to Revan and the others walking through the palace doors. We get a shot of the Jedi is sitting with the head of the families. He senses something and looks around. The head of the families says:

“So, it’s true you can feel the presence of the Sith then?”

The jedi master says:

“What is this?”

He says:

“They wanted to stake their claim in our negotiations for defense and peace. We thought we’d hear them out too.”

A guard walks in and says:

“They’re here sir.”

The head says:

“Send them in.”

The jedi readjusts in his chair. Then sees Revan walk in with the other 2 behind him. He watches the Korribani intently and says under his breath:

“A pureblood?”

Zeravûn’s ears twitch and he whispers:

“A human?!”

Acting in shock. Ekhralon giggles trying to hold in laughter. The head of the family looks in shock as Ekhralon walks in and sits. He says:

“I didn’t realize you had a force sensitive Chiss with you.”

Revan sits next to the head and says:

“She’s, my apprentice.”

The Jedi says:

“These aren’t envoys your heinous-“

The head of the family puts his hand up and shushes him. The head says:

"And a pureblood Korribani, this is truly an auspicious day. Two extinct species together in a room."

Revan says:

"Maybe this is the afterlife."

He laughs and says:

"I'm sure you'll never die Darth Revan."

The Jedi says:

"You sure know how to collect trophies..."

Revan glares at him through the mask and says:

"I'm not the one kidnapping innocent kids and training them... well I guess I also do that but after you've already done that so it's less evil."

The Jedi says:

"I'm interested in why exactly the Sith empire decided to stake it's claim now?"

The head of the families juts in and says:

“We will not discuss matters so trivial, now you’re both here we are open to your offers.”

Zeravûn says:

“The Sith empire would be willing to put an entire battalion of ships in orbit of the Chiss Ascendancy planets, along with force sensitives, of course housed outside of habitat locations, as to not scare the locals with exterior customs.”

The head of the families cocks his head and says:

“You speak on behalf of Revan?”

Revan turns to him and says:

“He speaks on behalf of the Sith, as the most ancient of us. I’m more of a bodyguard.”

The head of the families says:

“That’s a surprisingly shrewd offer.”

The Jedi says:

“As I’m sure you are aware, Jedi are peacekeepers, we won’t send a… domination force.”

Revan tries to hold in a laugh and leans back and says:

“Title of your sex tape?”

The jedi rolls his eyes and says:

“As peacekeepers the locals will never have to be afraid of the customs of the Jedi or the Republic, in all public places we will be disguised as neutral citizens.”

Zeravûn glares at him and says:

“So, you’re saying that if the Jedi were to betray the families, you’d be undetectable and could be spying on them this very moment?”

The jedi glares at him and says slowly:

“I will not address such baseless accusations from scum like you.”

Zeravûn smiles and looks at the head and says:

“We can offer absolute transparency; a word I’m sure doesn’t exist in his vocabulary.”

The head says:

“An interesting proposal. Rebuttal?”

He turns to the Jedi, the Jedi looks over and says:

“We can match anything he says he can do, as long as the Chiss are willing to negotiate on trading routes.”

Zeravûn smiles and says:

“May I ask the Jedi a direct question?”

The head of the families indicates with his hand as if to say, “Go ahead.” Zeravûn turns to him and says:

“What happened to your late chancellor?”

The head of the families looks confused. The jedi smiles with a hint of fear and says:

“I have no idea what you’re talking about.”

Zeravûn says:

“So, your chancellor isn’t dead?”

The Jedi says:

“What a baseless accusation.”

Revan says:

“Oh, I killed him, he’s definitely dead, or jam I guess is the more fitting word.”

The head of the families looks shocked. Zeravûn says:

“How can you entrust the defense of your peoples to a group that cannot defend their own?”

The Jedi says:

“How could you trust a murderer?”

Revan says:

“Oh, so you aren’t one too then. I get so forgetful these days, all the hate you know. Remind me, what peace are you keeping?”

The Jedi says:

“I’ve only killed in the protection of others, the Sith are known for infighting, what happens your heinous when they decide to turn on you?”

Zeravûn says:

“We have some proposals as to assurances, if they would interest the head to hear them?”

The head of the families waves as if to say go on. Zeravûn continues:

“The Sith Empire offers a hostage as an assurance we won’t do any wrong, this hostage will exist within the imperial palace however still relegated to a section that we build specifically to ensure no cross contamination between cultures, if the Sith ever turn on you, we give you absolute authority to kill said individual.”

The head looks confused. The Jedi looks horrified and says:

“That must be one serious hostage.”

Zeravûn says:

“The son of his imperial heinous himself, the eldest.”

Revan turns to look at Zeravûn not knowing it was coming. The Jedi says:

“So, your assurance is a suicide pact?”

Revan says:

“It’s simple, transparent, and works.”

Zeravûn says:

“The Sith are a warrior culture, but deeply tied with family, we respect that bond above all others.”

The head says:

“You have the authority to offer such an assurance?”

Zeravûn says:

“I’m Koribbani, we started the Sith, I have undying and ultimate authority, especially for a religious man such as the head of the empire.”

The head pauses and says:

“I have much to think about it gentlemen, thank you, there is food in the courtyard.”

They walk out and down to the gardens, there's an artist doing a nude painting of a woman on a garden bench. There are dancers practicing their routine on the asphalt. There are people dancing and there's a huge table with food and drink. Revan looks around and says:

"Oh, I could get used to this... can I be your hostage?"

Ekhralon reacts in disgust and Zeravûn laughs and says:

"Unfortunately, you're too valuable to be hostage on an isolationist planet."

Ekhralon says:

"Why would you want to stay here, they're so weird, that girl is naked."

Revan says:

"Precisely, they clearly respect art."

Ekhralon says:

"You're an artist?"

Revan says:

"For her I could be anything."

Zeravûn laughs and Revan continues:

“You know what I mean?”

Ekhralon turns around and starts eating and says:

“You’re disgusting Revan.”

The Jedi starts to walk down the stairs and comes down to the courtyard and pours a glass of wine and says:

“This is quite pleasant.”

Revan turns around and says:

“I was just saying that exact thing.”

The Jedi says:

“So why are you really here?”

Zeravûn says:

“The goals of the Sith have always been political peace and we have our ways of achieving that.”

The Jedi says:

“And yet Revan slaughters us every other day.”

Zeravûn says:

“Revan is independent of the Sith empire, the empire has allowed his independent chasing of his own goals, if the end goal is achieved. His revolution is his own.”

The Jedi says:

“So, the Sith aren’t going to war, but a Sith is going to war, good luck making that distinction clear to the galaxy.”

Zeravûn says:

“You seem to understand it perfectly.”

Revan says:

“I wouldn’t undermine the intellect of the people.”

The Jedi says:

“Why the Chiss?”

Revan says:

“My apprentice is Chiss, and they rarely open their borders.”

The Jedi says:

“That means nothing to a man like you.”

Revan says:

"Exactly I just knew it would shake them; it also allows her to see how her culture lives. She hasn't been home for a very long time on account of being kidnapped by the Jedi order."

The Jedi says:

"Saved."

Revan chuckles and says:

"Of course, you're saviors, my mistake."

The Jedi says:

"So, you're really just here for political reasons?"

Zeravûn says:

"Yeah and I do apologize for being so underhanded about your chancellor, but for a debate to be practical everyone's cards need to be shown."

He puts his arm out and says:

"Would you forgive me for being so lose lipped?"

The Jedi says:

“Of course. Forgiveness is our way.”

He shakes his hand. The jedi afterwards says:

“Is that an original Koribbani weapon?”

Zeravûn rips out the sword violently revealing a black obsidian colored sword with golden sith sigils on it. He hands it out to the Jedi and says:

“You want to feel where you come from?”

The Jedi hesitates and then grabs it. Images of the old sith/jedi war play in black and white, Sith using physical swords and the jedi using battery powered lightsabers, Sith slashing through Jedi using black force lightning. The jedi is now holding the sword and drops it horrified with tears dropping down his face. He stands back and says:

“I’m sorry, I have to go.”

The jedi leaves. Revan watches as he leaves then says to the others:

“The truth can hurt.”

We cut to Zeravûn shaking the hand of the head of the families, it’s now nighttime, Raindrops (insane) by Metro Boomin and Travis starts to play as we cut to Revan walking out of his room and down a hallway, intercut with Zeravûn shaking the hand of the Chiss head.

He is joined by the others, and we get a cut montage of them walking and they open the door of the Jedi’s room. The jedi is wearing underwear watching a holo TV. They move past guards posted at in the hallways and we focus on Ekhralon’s face.

They enter the room as the chorus comes back in, the jedi reaches to force grab his lightsaber, Revan force grabs it and Zeravûn stands in the middle of the room as the Jedi watches and shouts “KORRIBAN!” and black lightning explodes from his hands vaporizing the Jedi. Revan and Ekhralon watch, we focus on her face, now cold, indifferent as the drop out in the lyrics happens 0:43 – 0:47 and we smash cut to credits as the lyrics comes back in.
