REVAN

Season 1 - The Butcherer

EPISODE 09 – The Aing Tii

We open to Revan and Zeravûn in his ship in hyper space. Zeravûn says:

"Are you prepared for this?"

Revan takes a breath and puts his mask on and says:

"I think so."

Zeravûn says:

"Good."

The ship drops out of hyperspace as they look out, they see a vast black, almost swallowing void. Revan stands up and looks out and says:

"Are you sure about this?"

Zeravûn says:

"I don't have a choice."

Revan sighs and says:

"Alright."

He looks back out at the void and says:

“There isn’t even a star.”

Zeravûn says:

“It’s full of black hole systems and dark stars so use gravity mapping to navigate.”

Revan sits back down in the control seat and looks at a display. He taps it and navigates to gravity mapping. They see a heads-up display on the glass with grid lines. We see the grid lines curving on the sides and an extreme curve in the distance. Revan says:

“This is insane.”

Zeravûn says:

Revan says:

“I hate monks.”

He starts to move forward and turns as the gravity well in front comes closer. Zeravûn says:

“Remember no hyper space.”

Revan says:

“I have seen someone navigate unknown space before you know.”

Zeravûn says:

"Really?"

Revan says:

"After the war, a Sith general took me to see a certain Sith lord, then I converted when he promised that he would help me overthrow the Jedi."

"Who?"

Revan pauses and says:

"Who do you think?"

Zeravûn says:

"You met Vitiate?"

Revan says:

"I did, in person."

Zeravûn says:

“He doesn’t even show himself to the Sith, and you said you only heard rumors.”

Revan says:

“I have heard rumors, you assumed I only heard rumors.”

Zeravûn laughs and says:

“Perhaps you are insane.”

We fade to Atris walking through the Jedi temple.

She passes 2 Jedi councilors, they turn to her and say:

“Atris. Any updates from Bastila?”

Atris sighs and says:

“It could be months before Revan appears on Malachor again. He probably hates the idea of visiting his graveyard.”

A councilor says:

“You’ll keep us updated?”

She says:

“Of course, but I’ve also got matters to attend to here.”

The councilors bow and she bows back, then shakes her head as she walks away looking at her data pad. She passes the Padawan training. She walks past glancing, then stops and walks back and leans on the doorway watching them. She smiles and a woman comes up behind her and says:

"Fond memories?"

Atris turns to her with her head and says:

"I think we all remember our first days in the temple."

The woman smiles and says:

"They're in holding cell one."

Atris smiles and says coldly:

"Good."

She walks off as she's examining her data pad, on it is Kreia, Revan's old Mentor. She into an elevator and it cuts to her leaving on a darker level of the temple. She walks up to a door and it opens. Kreia and Meetra are sitting chained up. She smiles and enters, then when the door closes, she says:

"Good to see you two again."

Meetra says:

"For being Exiled we sure do spend a lot of time on Jedi soil."

Atris smiles and says as she looks up:

“You have no rights, no matter where you are.”

Kreia spits on the ground and says:

“We won’t help you find him.”

Atris sits down and crosses her legs, she then thinks for a second and says:

“Revan plans to go back to Malachor V.”

Kreia goes cold and says:

“He’s going back to a mass grave?”

Meetra says:

“That’s impossible, Malachor was destroyed.”

Atris says:

“Not completely, some of it remains stable.”

Kreia says:

“So why are we here?”

Atris says:

“Because you’re going to help me.”

Kreia laughs and says:

“Why would we do that?”

Atris pulls out a vibro blade, places it on the table and says:

“Because if you don’t, I’ll gut you.”

Meetra says:

“You can’t be seen killing two prisoners in your custody.”

Atris says:

“The jedi order is flexible.”

She puts her arms out and says:

“We bend.”

Kreia says:

“What exactly do you need our help with?”

Atris says:

"You two know Revan better than any other Jedi."

She laughs and says:

"The exiles."

She pauses then says:

"It just works well for me that no one respects you, and wouldn't miss you if you went missing."

Meetra says:

"We know Revan but have no idea why he'd be going back to Malachor in the first place."

Atris shushes her and says:

"Oh we know why he's going, all I need, is information on him."

Kreia sighs and says:

"Can we stop running around the point and get to it before I die of old age."

Atris smiles and says:

“Would Malak betray Revan if given the chance?”

They both look shocked and Meetra says:

“Malak followed Revan into war, into horror and then into darkness itself, he wouldn’t betray Revan.”

Atris glares at her and says:

“Really? He’s a sith lord.”

Kreia laughs and says:

“Careful Atris, your hatred is clouding your judgement, exactly what the Jedi aren’t supposed to feel.”

Atris smiles angrily and says:

“Would he betray Revan?”

Kreia glares at her and says:

“I never met Alek, but if I did I’m sure the conversation would have been a lot better than this. At least he knows how to respect old friends.”

Atris grabs her knife and leaves. She stops before the door and says:

“You’re lucky I’m still a Jedi.”

Meetra says:

“Are you saying you won’t be for long?”

Atris doesn’t respond and just leaves.

We smash cut as the cell door shuts to Ekhralon and Malak in Star Forge eating. Malak says:

“So how’s your training going?”

Ekhralon stops and says:

“Wait you’re actually having a real conversation with me?”

Malak says:

“We’re on the same side aren’t we?”

Ekhralon looks suspicious and says:

“I guess.”

Malak says:

“So tell me, how’s training.”

Ekhralon says:

“We still haven’t covered other force abilities, like absorbing energy.”

Malak says:

“Oh that takes immense strength and training.”

Ekhralon says:

“How much harder could it be?”

Malak says:

“Well force lightning is relatively simple, but hard to master. Even I haven’t. Absorption though is a different monster, because you have to match the other person, align yourself to their emotions and absorb it into you, as if your souls are aligned.”

Ekhralon says:

“Revan made it look easy.”

Malak says:

“Revan makes a lot of things look easy, but trust me, they’re not.”

Ekhralon pauses and says:

“So how long have you two been together?”

Malak says:

"Since the Mandalorian wars, he saved me, and I joined him."

Ekhralon says:

"Just like that?"

Malak says:

"You don't understand what it was like, cut off from Jedi council support, having to rely on the Sith, who hated us, or the republic forces who couldn't hold a candle to the mandalorians. It was a massacre every day."

There's a pause and Ekhralon says:

"Friends forged in fire."

Malak pauses surprised at the maturity and says:

"Exactly, a bond I thought would last forever."

Ekhralon smiles and says:

"I'm sure it will."

We see Malak's face cold watching Ekhralon eat, when she looks up he smiles, and she smiles back and then eats again and he goes cold again.

We swipe transition to Revan and Zeravûn. Revan says:

"So how deep do we need to go?"

Zeravûn says:

"At least 3 inches."

Revan says:

"Not the time."

Zeravûn sighs and says:

"We need to get past the gravity wells and dark stars and black holes, then we'll be in a metastable area of the galaxy, they should be waiting for us."

Revan says:

"Waiting for us?"

Zeravûn says:

"Well, I guess."

Revan says:

"This really feels like something we shouldn't be doing."

Zeravûn says:

"Calm down, only a little longer."

Revan says:

"How do you know these guys if they've been hidden?"

Zeravûn says:

"There's a reason I carry king Adas' Sword."

Revan says:

"That's king Adas' sword? That isn't possible."

Zeravûn says:

"I told you, they trade in force artifacts, and seeing as he was the first Sith king in the old empire it's a very strong artifact."

The grid line overlay stops bending and lines up completely again. Zeravûn sits up looking out and says:

"There."

Pointing out into space. A coral-like structure appears floating, the inside glowing and breathing as if it's alive. Revan stands up and says:

“That’s insane.”

The ship circles the coral ship, and lands on a landing pad. Revan says:

“Here.”

Handing him a helmet. Zeravûn says:

“Don’t need it.”

Revan says:

“Really?”

Zeravûn smiles and says:

“Watch and learn.”

He creates a force bubble around himself, and the ship opens. They walk out and there are two Aing-tii monks floating outside near the entrance. One teleports over to them, folding space around it as it does so. It gestures towards the entrance and says:

“Welcome travelers.”

Revan and Zeravûn walk into a huge ancient door that opens automatically. The doors close behind them and another Monk teleports next to them and says:

“Follow me.”

We cut to them walking down a hallway with different artifacts on the wall and in display cases. They walk past a screaming orb with tendrils squirming in the air trying to grab onto them. Revan stops and turns around noticing it. He walks up to it and puts his hand out as it reaches for him. The monk teleports in front of him making him retreat. Revan says:

"What is it?"

The monk smiles and says:

"Not of this galaxy."

Revan looks back at it and says:

"It's almost alive."

The monk swipes its arm over it, teleporting it away as it says:

"The vong will rise, just not yet."

Revan says:

"The vong?"

The monk just floats down the hallway again. Zeravûn turns to Revan and says:

"What are you doing Revan?!"

Revan says:

"I was interested."

Zeravûn says:

"Best not to be yeah?"

They continue walking down a hallway. As we transition to Bastila's ship window looking out to Malachor V in the distance.

She's in bed sleeping. We see her dreams, a girl screaming running away from a Mandalorian soldier, the Mandalorian starts to fire on her, as she's hit. We cut back to Bastila who rolls over now sweating. We cut back to the dream; Revan bullet jumps into the Mandalorian and decapitates him. We cut back to her as she squirms in her dream. We cut back to the dream with Revan looking out to the planet as the white light of the mass shadow generator activates, we see the people on the surface, run out of buildings as they collapse on to themselves killing everyone inside. The ships crashing into the surface of the planet. As a ship explodes, she screams awake, hyperventilating, she catches her breath and then turns seeing Darth Nihilus standing in the corner of her room. He's whispering sith runes as he walks over to her. He forces throws her against the wall, continuing to whisper sith runes, as she squirms trying to fight, she screams out for help. He walks up to her slowly playing with a coin like object as he whispers Sith runes, a voice echoes around her:

"Death is sweater than life."

In an almost serpent-like voice and starts to drain her life, and she screams awake again. She hyperventilates as she runs into the bathroom and stands in front of the sink. She runs cold water and splashes her face and drinks some water. As she rises again Nihilus' face sits behind her whispering. She screams and turns around, he isn't there. She crawls into a ball and starts crying. Seravé comes in light saber drawn and sees Bastila crying in the corner of the bathroom. She deactivates the saber and walks over to her and sits next to her holding her hand. She grips her hand.

We slowly fade to Revan and Zeravûn sitting in 2 coral chairs, the chairs adjusting to their bodies as they sit, it makes a squishy sound. A monk teleports in front of them and says:

"You have come to trade..."

Revan puts a bag on the table of Jedi and Sith holocrons. The monk force lifts them out of the bag and analysis them, opening all of them with the overlapping voices. He shuts them and teleports 3 items in front of them. Zeravûn sighs and says:

"Not enough huh?"

The monk smiles. Zeravûn puts his blade on the table and says:

"How much for King Adas' Sword?"

The monk touches it, lighting firing between its fingers and the blade. Revan turns to Zeravûn and says:

"Really?"

Zeravûn whispers:

"I have a lightsaber you know."

The Aing-Tii monk teleports the three items away and displays 3 more. Zeravûn looks at the scrolls on the table and says:

"I can have the scrolls for this?"

The Aing-Tii monk smiles. Revan turns to him and says:

"Who still uses paper?"

"Darth Andeddu created these scrolls, they teach the user Sith dark transfer. Lost knowledge."

Revan says:

"Sounds like a weak ability."

Zeravûn says:

"It's practically immortality."

Revan looks over at the dark holocron and says:

"What about that?"

Zeravûn thinks for a second and says:

"2 great choices, 1 is secret alchemical knowledge developed by Belia Darzu, the other immortality."

Revan turns to the Monk and says:

“He gets to choose something but I want something else.”

The monk tilts its head. Revan says:

“I want you to teach me your force abilities.”

The monk thinks for a second and says:

“Too weak.”

Revan raises an eyebrow and says:

“Even teleportation?”

The monk thinks for a second and puts his arm out. He focuses on Revan and then pulls its arm back suddenly and says:

“Maybe strong enough.”

Revan smiles and says:

“Good. How does it work?”

A monk teleports in and grabs Revan and teleports him to a random planet on a beach. Revan looks around in shock and says:

“Where am I?”

The monk force lifts a holocron and Revan grabs it. It's neither Sith nor Jedi. He looks confused and says:

"How do I open it?"

The monk smiles and teleports away. Revan looks around and says:

"Really?!"

We cut to Zeravûn and he points to the dark holocron. The monk force lifts it into his hands and says:

"Thank you."

A monk teleports on him and teleports them both back into their ship, then disappears. We cut to Revan; he's meditating and the holocron opens. An early Chiss force sensitive can be seen, he says:

"This holocron covers the most practical force ability in the galaxy. Force Folding requires absolute mastery of balance between light and dark."

Revan says:

"So it takes both?"

The chiss says:

"One has to be completely calm and feel the two sides ripping himself apart. Everything that makes you, well you."

Revan says:

"Sounds wonderful."

The Chiss says:

"As the two sides fight, the user has to imagine a place, the smells, the way the wind feels, and if powerful enough, the universe will fold around them allowing them to travel anywhere instantly."

Revan says:

"This should be fun to try."

He stands still and closes his eyes. A monk watches on from a distance. Revan feels the wind, it starts to rip around him, the sound of both sides of the force fighting can be heard. He squints as he tries to gain control. The ground beneath him starts to rip open. The ocean near him starts to ripple back. The wind ripping around him as the two sides fight and suddenly, he disappears, and teleports above the ocean and falls into it. He swims back to the shore and laughs in disbelief that he did it. The monk appears above him and touches him teleporting both back into their ship and the monk teleports away. Zeravûn notices Revan is soaked and says:

"Why are you wet?"

Revan laughs and says:

"I did it! I teleported!"

Zeravûn smiles and says:

“Into a bath?”

Revan laughs and then looks around and says:

“Ah we have to go now?”

Zeravûn smiles and says:

“Yes, yes we do.”

We use Zeravûn standing up to transition to Bastila sitting down.

Seravé hands her a tea and says:

“Are you ok?”

Bastila looks out to the planet and says:

“This place is evil.”

Seravé says:

“You had a nightmare?”

Bastila says:

“More like a premonition.”

Seravé pauses and says:

"Just a few more days and we'll be done."

Bastila says:

"It could be weeks."

Seravé says:

"Then promise me we'll leave in a couple days if he doesn't show."

Bastila says:

"But this might be our only chance."

Seravé pauses and says:

"Is it worth your mind?"

Walking by Denzel Curry starts to play as Bastila goes silent and we get a montage of Ekhralon training, Revan flying through uncharted space and Meetra and Keira arguing with council members in chains. We see the Sith lords sitting and waiting. Malak talking with the Jedi and building his revolution. The tiers of Star Forge and smash cut to credits.
